

Thank you for attending my NRA educational session on "Three Critical Steps to Positioning Your Restaurant into a World-Class Brand".

I hope you found the session valuable and I have provided you with new tools to build independent or chain restaurant businesses by helping you build better brands.

I want to urge you to put positioning to work for your company brands and your personal brand.

At your next company executive team meeting take the positioning 3 question test and see if your brand is strategically focused and its message being clearly communicated. Compare your answers with your executive teams answers. I will bet you will identify positioning opportunities. Then go develop a positioning statement for your business brand and yourself. Once you have your positioning statement in place - - reassess your projects and priorities. I am sure you will be able to drop many projects and bring a new level of focus to your business.

Feel free to give me a call or drop me an email if you would like to discuss your current positioning situation. I would be happy to discuss this with you. And if you would like outside help leading the brand positioning process for your brand and would like to utilize my proprietary one-day positioning session, I would welcome the opportunity to work with you.

Best regards,

Warren Elish

Brand Positioning

- To communicate a clear and meaningful message about your brand:
  - Develop a concise brand positioning statement with a competitive point of difference
  - Gain complete management alignment behind positioning

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Today's Session

- What positioning is
- Why it's important
- Three critical elements of a brand positioning statement
- How to build a positioning statement
- Ten "live" cases
- Questions

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Quick Test

- Is your brand strategically positioned and is its message clearly communicated?

Are you sure?

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Question #1

- What business is your brand in?

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Question #2

- What is the target market for your brand?

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Question #3

- What is the point of difference for your brand?

Note: List no more than 3 things!

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Take Home Tool

- Put test to work for you
- Ask members of your management team
- Analyze your results
  - Or send them to me for analysis
- Identify if your brand positioning can be enhanced and if you have management alignment

Definition of Positioning

- The way in which you want the consumer to think about your product or service relative to competing brands
- States the reason for brand's existence

© 2012 Ellish Marketing Group LLC

Permanence of Positioning

- Should precede development of all brand sub-strategies
- Once successfully established, should rarely be changed

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Not Just A Marketing Thing

- Requires full on-going support by management, employees and even vendors
- Brings organizational focus

Positioning Statement

- A brand's positioning is captured in the following statement:

To _____ (Market Target), Brand X is the Brand of _____ (Frame of Reference) that is/that offers _____ (Point of Difference).

3 Critical Elements of Positioning Statement

Point of Difference

Brand
Positioning

Market
Target

Frame of Reference
(Competitive Set)

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- Specific consumer benefit which you want consumers to associate most readily with your product or service
- Consumer end benefit which is product/service and or emotionally based
- Best to capture a single benefit (or short bundled list)

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- The POD which relates the greatest consumer benefit or solves the greatest consumer need will offer the greatest marketing leverage

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- Make sure your POD is:
  - Preemptive, ownable and defensible
    - Important and relevant
    - Distinctive
    - Superior
    - Communicable
    - Affordable
    - Profitable

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- How your customers would describe what your product/service is all about if they were to describe it to a friend

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- Don't let a point of similarity become a point of difference - - they are nothing more than points of entry into your competitive set

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- Build an attribute list focusing on (as applicable):
  - People (employees)
  - Place (physical facilities)
  - Product/Service offerings
  - Price

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Point of Difference

- Identify the MOST important preemptive, ownable and defensible attribute(s)
- Avoid three positioning errors:
  - Under positioning
  - Over positioning
  - Confused positioning

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Frame of Reference

- What business are you in?
- The consumer grouping of like products with which your product/service competes
- Includes all the options that a consumer has available to satisfy a specific need

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Frame of Reference

- “What does this product/service substitute for?”
- Market currently structured vs. how it might be restructured
- Forcing restructuring of the existing market often yields largest opportunities

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Frame of Reference

- Different tools used for understanding (existing) market structure:
  - Purchase and Usage Behavior study

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Frame of Reference

- As a member of a specific FOR, all perceived benefits and drawbacks automatically accrue to your product/service
- Consider a newly defined FOR if product is unique and establishes a new segment in the market

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Frame of Reference

Market Target

- Composed of consumers considered good potential users for your product/service

© 2012 Elish Marketing Group LLC

Market Target

- Select the largest size where there is interest in the frame of reference and leverage in the point of difference

Positioning Principles Summary

- In selecting your positioning, seek one which is:
  - Believable and consistent with the product/services performance
  - In as large a frame of reference and market target where the product/service can deliver a meaningful point of difference
  - Targeted at delivering the most meaningful benefit/correcting the biggest problem in the frame of reference chosen
  - Unique from competition
  - Capable of enduring the life of the brand
